City Approves Plan To Boost Water Storage

Expects To Add 1,500,000-Gallon Tank To Meet Increased Needs; Meters To Be Installed at Well Field Pumps

City council gave serious consideration today to plans to erect an additional water storage tank, of 1,500,000 gallons capacity, to meet increased industrial and domestic demands, and to install meters at all of the pumps in the well fields to allow for a consistent and accurate checkup of the water supply and output of the wells.

These recommendations of Henry S. Moore, New Philadelphia engineer and water expert who was employed by council sometime ago to chart a program to improve the supply and quality of the Salem water, met council's approval at a meeting last night although official action will not be taken until the solons meet in a special session before the close of the month.

COUNCIL HITS WATER RATES

Fund Shrinking, Recommends Removal of 25 Per Cent Discount

Elimination of the water rate reduction placed in effect a year ago by Mayor Norman Phillips was recommended by city council last night as a means of averting any possible crisis in waterworks funds.

The act of placing into effect the previous discount of 10 per cent for prompt payment of bills and removal of the present 25 per cent rates with Mayor Phillips or, after Jan. 1, with the new mayor, R. R. Johnson.

Council last night also authorized Police Chief R. N. Stoffer to have the jail cell blocks removed from the condemned city hall to one section of the waterworks pumping station which heretofore has been used as a coal storage.

Waterworks Fund Dwindles
Council A. P. Morris, chairman of the finance committee, reported last night that the waterworks fund had dwindled to $40,000, with $10,000 in outstanding bills which must be paid before the end of the year.

In view of the situation, Morris said, the finance committee feels that "we can profitably recommend the restoration of the water rates to the level prior to the time of the reduction in order to avert a financial crisis."

Council approved the recommendation unanimously.

Discussing finances in general, the committee head recalled that council had set up its 1942 budget to allow for wage increases for city employees, and expressed the hope that the county budget commission would not cut the city's operating mileage as it did a year ago, an act which would probably throw a "monkey wrench" into plans to vote wage increases.

Morris also indicated that no funds were available at the present time.

How Japanese Bombers Razed Interior of U. S. Hangers at Hickman Field

A view of hanger No. 11 at Hawaii's Hickman airfield gives stark evidence of damage wreaked by Japanese bombing planes during their surprise attack against Uncle Sam's Pacific outpost.

Let Your Answer to Bombs Be BONDS!

The Salem Junior Chamber of Commerce's bonds for defense drive reached the $27,000 mark today after sales of defense bonds and stamps yesterday netted $5,900.

But there's still a lot more buying to be done on the part of Salem citizens to raise $180,000, the amount needed to buy a bomber.

We are fighting enemies who will stop at nothing. With our homes, our very lives at stake, shall we stop short of giving our dimes and dollars for defense?

Buy defense bonds and stamps every day, every week. Buy as if your very life depended upon it. IT DOES!

W. D. McKeefrey, Leetonia Industrialist, Dies In West

W. D. McKeefrey, aged about 82, Leetonia industrialist for many years, died Sunday in California, according to word received by friends yesterday.

Mr. McKeefrey, who had been in failing health, went last fall to visit with a daughter.

Owner and manager of the McKeefrey Industries in Leetonia, Mr. McKeefrey was born in the old seventh ward of Pittsburgh, the son of John and Mary A. McFarland McKeefrey.

His early education was obtained in the Pittsburgh parochial and public schools. After leaving school he was employed by the Pittsburgh Bolt & Iron Co., and later worked for the National Tube Co. He also worked for the Union Rolling Mill Co. of Cleveland and was a traveling salesman for awhile for several steel companies.

In 1938 he and W. D. Hofus leased the Grafton furnaces at Leetonia and two years later his father, John, and his brother, N. J. McKeefrey, joined the partnership and the firm became known as McKeefrey and company.

In 1932 the McKeefreys organized and incorporated as the Salem Iron Co. of Leetonia, purchasing the Grafton furnaces. These were rebuilt and enlarged to increase production. The trio later organized what was known as the Atlas Coke Co., W. D. McKeefrey serving as vice president of both organizations at that time.

Mr. McKeefrey, at one time, specialized in raising horses, Jersey cattle and Berkshire hogs on a 275-acre farm near Leetonia.

The body is expected to be returned to Leetonia within a few days. Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

William Harold Farmer, 40, of Canton, arrested on the Damascus road on a charge of speeding, was fined $10 and costs in the mayor's court.

John Joseph Handlick, 21, of R. D. 1, Salem and Raymond Thomas of 151 E. Eighth st. charged with speeding on the Damascus road, drew similar fines.

Two Successful Attacks Listed In Brief Report

U. S. Army Bombers Destroy 26 Jap Planes In Heavy Attack On Beach Head Established Last Week at Vigan, On Luzon West Coast

(By The Associated Press)
MANILA, Dec. 17.—U. S. army bombers destroyed 26 Japanese planes and fired fuel supplies in a heavy attack yesterday on the beach head which the Japanese established last week at Vigan on the Luzon west coast, 200 miles from Manila, army headquarters announced today.

The announcement followed swiftly on an official disclosure that submarines of the U. S. Asiatic fleet had gone into action for the first time in the 11-day-old war with Japan, scoring successes the details of which were not immediately divulged.

The communique announcing the attack on Vigan, launched apparently to prevent the Japanese from establishing air bases necessary for conquest of the Philippines, said there had been "no change in the land situation today."

The bulletin was issued at 4 p. m. (2 a. m. EST.)

Of the Japanese planes destroyed, one was shot down in aerial combat and the remainder were wrecked on the ground, the communique declared.

The brief announcement said: "The enemy at Vigan suffered heavily from an attack by our air force yesterday. One Japanese plane was shot down and at least 25 more were destroyed on the ground. Fuel supplies were set afire. There has been no change in the land situation today."

Subs Are "Successful"
In a cryptic statement, Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander of the fleet, declared that United States submarines had "made two successful attacks" and a third which failed to achieve its objective.

Hart said the defensive plan drawn up for the Asiatic fleet before the war called for counterattacks in the event of Japanese aggression.

Whether the attacks to which he referred were against Japanese naval forces or against merchant shipping remained a matter of speculation.

Disclosure of the submarine operations was the only naval or military development of the day.

No Change On Ground
A communique issued by U. S. army headquarters shortly after 11 a. m. (9 p. m. EST. Tuesday) said merely:

"There is no change in the situation on the ground. No air activity has been reported since yesterday."

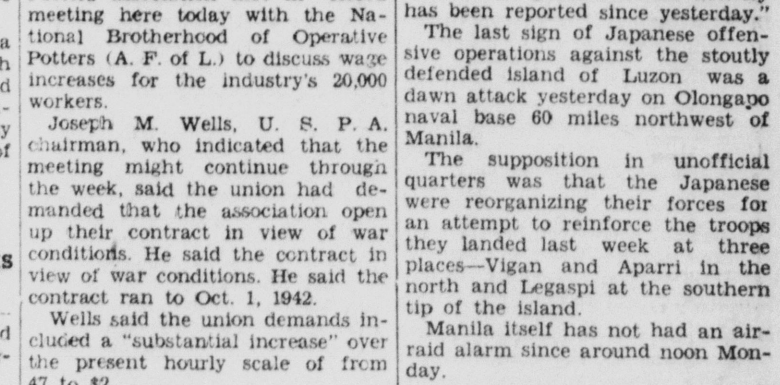

The last sign of Japanese offensive operations against the stoutly defended island of Luzon was a dawn attack yesterday on Olongapo naval base 60 miles northwest of Manila.

The supposition in unofficial quarters was that the Japanese were reorganizing their forces for an attempt to reinforce the troops they landed last week at three places—Vigan and Aparri in the north and Legaspi at the southern tip of the island.

Manila itself has not had an air raid alarm since around noon Monday.

REV. JOHN HAYES HOLMES AND HIS PROBLEM

Because his situation is typical of the hot spot on which many pacifists find themselves, the course taken by Rev. John Hayes Holmes, pastor of Community church in New York City, attracts attention. He has signed an undated resignation to be accepted by his church when and if his pacifism becomes embarrassing. Meanwhile, he will not compromise his principles by pretending to condone war. It sounds like an equitable solution.

It's a good bet that Pastor Holmes' resignation won't be accepted. Members of his congregation may want their minister to do what he is supposed to do—keep right on leading the way through thick and thin to a point where pacifists won't be embarrassed any more by their credo. Others, not so far advanced in their development, will consider it a privilege to do the fighting necessary to keep the United States safe for pacifists. That happens to be one of the things for which the war is being fought.

The Netherlands, for instance. War in the Pacific has revealed that the Dutch are considerably more than a government in exile. They are damaging the Japanese where it hurts, in the campaign to grab the East Indies.

The Norwegians. Their ships, sailors and pilots have been worth their weight in gold and will be worth more. The Poles. When they fly against the Axis, there is no question. The French. Propaganda paints one picture but does not obliterate completely another picture. Adolf Hitler has not been able to gain as much advantage from his conquest of France as he expected. He has been disappointed in Belgium and Norway, too—and in Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Greece, Poland, Austria.

The Members of the anti-Axis bloc truly are too numerous to mention. They are everywhere. They are even in Germany, Italy and Japan. They are bound to each other by a shared loathing of arrogance and despotism, whereas the Axis is held together by nothing except expediency in a campaign of plunder.

THE BAD NEWS

Navy Secretary Knox's official report on the Pearl Harbor incident is considerably worse than his countrymen wish it were, considerably better than they feared it might be. The United States has learned what should have been an easy lesson the hard way.

Chiefly, it has learned that the fatal thing to do in dealing with an enemy skilled at waging war and driven by desperation is to take something for granted. The defenders of Hawaii were not as alert as they should have been, and they were victimized by fifth columnists—says the secretary of the navy.

Japan might have knocked the United States out of the war with a little more luck. It succeeded in putting this country at a disadvantage, though the net result may be more favorable when it is finally appraised than the first calculation. There is this good reason for believing so:

Until Pearl Harbor, Americans were not taking the war seriously. A continuation of the illusion of security that had deceived many of them completely would have been serious; it might even have been fatal. The United States was saved from its own lethargy by a good kick where it hurt. It may prove to have been cheap at the price, heavy though the price was.

Nor will it be overlooked that already the United States has decided to reconsider that part of its ship-building program which deals with battleships. When a few cheap airplanes can destroy a $50,000,000 piece of fighting machinery, no one can doubt any longer that the airplane is going to revise a lot of ideas about warfare.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN STRATEGIST

The beginning of high-flown talk about some kind of an inter-Allied council to plot and execute anti-Axis strategy is bound to leave the ordinary homespun strategist just the same way it found him—sour. The ordinary strategist, having received all the news bulletins and consulted all the experts, knows exactly how this war is going to be won. He needs no high command to show him how to do it.

Germany, Japan and Italy must be set back on their heels inside their own borders as of pre-war date. The Germans must be licked inside Germany, the Italians inside Italy, the Japs inside Japan. First, they must be driven back home, then they must be slugged around in their own front yards till their teeth rattle. The populations that have had a secret hankering for pouncing on foreign territory must be reminded that the consequences are very grim.

Perhaps that will cool them off the next time their blabbermouths and sword rattlers feel the blood lust rising and exhort the poor, innocent common people to go on a raiding party with them. Perhaps it won't, but an ordinary homespun strategist is mindful that the European countries which took the worst beating in World War I were the last to start preparing for World War II; Germany, which got off scot-free, even though it was the nominal loser, was first to dream of new conquests and easy loot.

So as the ordinary strategist sees it, the job is really quite simple. The United States must rather the daylight out of the Japs with one hand till the little brown brothers come to their senses; with the other hand it must hand tools to the British, the Russians and the Chinese. Their job, besides helping whip the Japs, is to pin back the ears of the Germans, the Italians and their camp followers. It doesn't require a lot of fancy machinery of consultation so much as it requires a lot of plain and fancy fighting, with each fighter putting everything he has into the job. A high command and a council and so on might come in handy, but when they're mentioned they stir memories of World War I. Too much time was wasted by the high commanders in figuring out ways and means for winning the credit—not enough in winning the war. One way and another, the war almost was forgotten entirely in the scramble to keep the other fellow from looking too much like a hero.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, December 18

THE LUNAR transits bearing rule on the affairs of this day should be of a very propitious and pleasant nature, promising advancement, success and happiness in all relations. It should be a time to push to high places with the good will and substantial support of those in influence and power. This gracious and friendly aid may be looked for in all relations, business and personal. However, this auspicious state of general affairs may be subject to duplicity, enmity and sordid intrigues or secret antipathies. Be on your guard.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a very happy, enjoyable and progressive year, with the friendly support and good will of those in prestige and power, whose friendship may be counted upon not only in promoting business objectives or financial credit, but may be felt in affectional or sentimental relations as well. Business thrives and private joys are imminent, but in all be alert to treachery, deep schemes or secret and sordid intrigues. An undercurrent of mystery may prevail in this.

A child born on this day should have many talents and graces to enable it to attain a fortunate, successful and happy life. It may be subject, however, to sordid and sinister betrayals of a secret source.

Here is a French prophet who is quoted as saying: "The end of the world will come next August." Some of the war lords, we believe, would like it to come even earlier than that.

Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau is quoted as saying: "We must live the simple life." Well, Morgenthau, you're doing your level best to bring us to it.

It grows nicer every day, to be living in a country with all of us having a right to our opinions, it matters not how dumb we are.

OBSERVE CHRONOMETRY OF LIFE

Errors Often Injure Health, Says Clendening

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Perfect health is a very difficult thing to define, probably largely because it doesn't exist. It is a sort of abstraction made up of different parts of different individuals' ideals in some respect.

You take the ideal of one man's head of hair, another man's perfect teeth, another man's unusual eyesight, this fellow's perfect digestion, that man's splendid muscular build and posture and the other fellow's feet and the composite is what you call a normal person in perfect health. But he isn't normal at all. You find him in probably one in five million people and his perfect health is simply an abstraction or a theoretical ideal.

No; disease or illness is the lot of man far more than perfect health.

All the elements that go to make up even a reasonably healthy human organism are very complex. One of these elements that we are inclined to forget is chronometry, or the normal passing of time, the normal development of various functions at the proper time. This chronometry is quite as important an element in health as chemistry, body mechanics, bacteria or the elements of environment.

Schedule of Development
Our life, in other words, is unfolded according to a time schedule of development. A little baby is not supposed to have any teeth. When it does get its first teeth they are small and fragile. But suppose it was born with adult teeth and could chew and masticate all kinds of food. This ability would be far ahead of its digestive powers and an adult mouth and adult tastes in food would simply overwhelm the stomach and intestines.

Just so the development of the brain can go too fast. A too precocious child is regarded by everybody except its parents with a certain amount of distaste. Some people you know are going through life on a time schedule that is all keyed up. They rush through life getting things done at a rate which makes us dizzy and perhaps at the end appear to be old and broken before their time. Others err in the opposite direction and are always behind and never seem to catch up, either with their work or with life. This seems to break men down quite as much as being in too much of a hurry.

Take Your Time

Errors in the chronometry of life may be in the whole or in one part. As in the instances I have just mentioned, the whole man and all his organs may be going too fast or too slow. But sometimes one part of the body is ahead of the others—the muscles are too strong for the personality and the dissonance is just as evident as that in listening to an orchestra when the first violin is ahead of the piano.

Then we all know those who in youth have been keyed to be ahead of all their companions—they belong in higher grades in school than others of their age. Often, in fact usually I think as time goes on they fail behind so that at the age of fifty they are far behind their former companions in the affairs of life.

Happy is the man who finds his body and his mind developing naturally through the cycles of the age changes, and who meets childhood, youth, manhood, middle age and old age on their own terms.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. HANDS WOULD SWELL AND BECOME SO STIFF AND SORE HE COULD HARDLY USE THEM

Noticed road advertising and window display of TON-JON so he decided to give it a trial. Has been granted so much relief that he advises other people to use it.

"TON JON has benefited me so greatly that I would like to urge anyone who needs a good remedy, to give TON JON a fair trial," stated Mr. John Yaker, 719 E. Fourth St., East Liverpool, Ohio.

"I used TON JON for a kidney ailment which had given me a lot of trouble for one or two years. I was so nervous that I could hardly do my work and before evening came I felt so tired and worn out that I could scarcely keep going. When I walked very much I would become short of breath. I had torturing dizzy spells and had a bad taste in my mouth constantly. I would have to get up at intervals during the night and of course this deprived me of much-needed sleep and rest. Not getting sufficient rest had a bad effect on my work because I didn't have enough energy to do it properly. My hands would become so swollen and be so stiff and sore that I sometimes couldn't use them."

"I have been given so much relief by taking TON JON that I am much stronger and can do my work fast and efficiently now. In my opinion TON JON is the best medicine I have ever taken and can only give it the highest praise."

If you suffer in this way, get some TON JON at once, instead of being sorry later that you put it off. The TON JON Health Representative is at the Broadway Lease Drug Store, Salem, Ohio.

Emerald Embassy

by FRANCIS GERARD

SYNOPSIS

While strolling along the country-side, Ambrose Pennyfeather, a respected citizen of Weyland, England, is shot to death by a man who spoke with a French accent. The nearby residence of Lord George Lancaister, he and his brother Yves Blaydes-Steele, discuss the murder of their friend, the never had an enemy in the world. Then talk turns to the matter of Yves is to perform for his brother the next day. In the year 1888, the then Earl of Lancaister, the tyrannical Dwan of the island of Sulungu, and seated the others cousin, Prince Thalan, on the throne. For this, Queen Victoria honored Lancaister with the mission of presenting a precious emerald to the new sultan each year. The Dwan conferred upon Lord Lancaister the "Honour of the Emerald," and from that time the Blaydes-Steele family became a link between the Imperial crown of England and the ruling house of Sulungu. There were great jewels in the necklace. In recent years, the Dwan had come to England to have the new emerald added to the chain. This Yves was to do the next day. There was a photograph that "the who were the necklace were also the diadem." The priceless string now assumed international importance since Sulungu loomed as a strategically located submarine base and Japan was nearby. Besides, oil had been discovered there. The little island, therefore, was of inestimable value to Great Britain.

CHAPTER FOUR

Yves was spending the night at Weyland Hall and after a final sleep he retired to bed. But not to sleep. The aged figure of Ambrose Pennyfeather quite literally haunted him. Stafford had telephoned late that evening to say that there was no due whatsoever to the murderer and so far, not a ghost of a motive and appeared. Stafford had said that Rainbird had been hopeful of establishing some link by means of the dog aristocrat's jaws. His fangs had been carefully examined but there was not a trace of threat or cloth and. Yves spent a wretched night. He woke at six with a headache. But after a hot bath, he felt better and at seven o'clock he was letting himself out of the billiard room and into the garden. The morning was misty and gave out of a brilliant day to come. He glanced at his wrist watch and saw that he had two hours before he would leave in the car. On the spur of the moment, he passed through the gate in the lefty garden wall and found himself in the narrow lane which led to Weyland's Wood. Five minutes' walk brought him to the spot where Mr. Pennyfeather had met his death. Yves was moving slowly over the ground, his eye intent, when a hoarse voice from the mist exclaimed, suddenly, "Now then, now then, and what next you be a doin' of?" Yves looked up and recognized

Simon Whistlercraft, Weyland constable. "I beg your pardon Mr. Yves," he pronounced it "Wives"—"Turbid business, this 'ere, yiss, yiss." "Mornin'," Whistlercraft, nodded Yves pleasantly. "Yes, it's all that you been here long?" "Every hour of the night, Mr. Wives." Yves had a short conversation with the policeman who confirmed the evident fact that the stony ground near the first trees of Weyland's Woods would retain no footprint. On his return to the house, Yves found the local inspector of police seated in the hall. "Hello Rainbird, any further developments?" "No, Mr. Yves." "What's the Colonel Stafford going to do now?" asked young Blaydes-Steele. "Well, that's what I come to see His Lordship about. The Colonel's against callin' in the Yard and I'm here behind his back, so to speak."

"You want my brother to persuade your chief to appeal to Scotland Yard, is that it?" "Well, sir, it's like this," went on the inspector with good hard sense. "Chaps like me is all very well for dealing with small burglaries and thefts of bicycles and such like, but it stands to reason we haven't had the experience that these fellows up at the Yard get. I always say if you want an expert's job done, why call in an expert."

"I always thought you were extremely sensible," nodded Yves. "Have you had any breakfast? No? Then come in and have some grub with me." After breakfast the inspector asked, "When might it be convenient for me to see His Lordship?" "I'll find out for you," said Yves. "But I've a suggestion to make if you wouldn't mind."

After that there breakfast, Mr. Yves," said Rainbird expansively, "I wouldn't mind anything." "Well, this is how I see it," said Blaydes-Steele. "You would like to bring in the Yard. Colonel Stafford is against it. I have no doubt my brother could persuade your superior to fall in with your wishes but it wouldn't make for the best relations between you, would it?" Rainbird nodded. "Not the very best, sir." "Exactly," said Yves. "Now I've another idea. Have you ever heard of Meredith?" "You mean Sir John Meredith as was Superintendent Meredith of the C. I. D. Why 'e's a 'ole Yard in himself!" "That's the fellow," nodded Yves. "I'm seeing him today. Perhaps I might persuade him to take an unofficial interest in the case." "You couldn't have anybody better," agreed the inspector. "I've always wanted to see Sir John Meredith at work. Be an education, it would. And now I'll be getting along, Mr. Yves. Thank you for the breakfast. Oh, and another thing, perhaps you wouldn't mind not mentioning my visit to the Colonel if you happen to see him." "I'll be as close as an oyster," promised his host. When the inspector had gone Angela appeared in the doorway of the dining-room. "Morning, Yves. John's on the phone and wants to know what he's to wear." "Oh, lord!" said Yves. "I forgot to tell him." He went into the hall and picked up the telephone receiver. "John? Yves here." "In what?" Meredith's voice came over the wire, "do I drape my mane in form for this occasion? Do we give his oriental nips the whole works?" "The whole works!" stressed Yves. "Blimey!" snorted Sir John. "If I'd known that, I'd never have agreed to go with you. Well, what time do we meet?" "Nine-thirty," replied Yves. "Oh, by the way, suppose you carry a gun?" "I've got an automatic." "Well, bring it. George is most insistent about that. Says one can't escort a million's worth of emeralds without adequate protection. See you at nine-thirty, old man. Bye-Bye."

At five minutes to nine Mr. Blaydes-Steele's car was brought from the garage. At nine precisely the appeared beneath the front porch, looking extremely distinguished in his perfectly cut morning coat. As Yves switched on the engine and gently pressed the accelerator pedal, the big, yellow car woke to roaring, snarling life. One moment it was stationary. Before the front door and the next it was out of sight down the drive. "I hope he'll drive more carefully coming back," said Lady Lancaister, watching from the window of her husband's bedroom.

A streak of yellow lightning flashed past the Meredith dining-room windows and the next second came the staccato bellow of the car's horn. Sir John flung open the front door and stood regarding Yves Blaydes-Steele non-committally.

"Good morning, my man," said Yves. "Would you tell Sir John Meredith, Mr. Blaydes-Steele is here?" Meredith said nothing. One eyebrow went up slightly. That was all. Mr. Blaydes-Steele gave an exaggerated start of surprise and said, "Good lord, old boy. So sorry. Didn't recognize you in those clothes. Thought you were the butler."

"Would you like to come in and have a cup of coffee?" suggested Meredith. "It'd give me an opportunity to poison you." "No time for either," responded Yves and so Meredith bustled into the yellow car, which swung once more down the drive and snarled away along the Colchester road. They were nearing London before Yves ventured to mention the murder of Ambrose Pennyfeather. Sir John listened in silence and, having then put a few pertinent questions, sat in thought. Then he asked, "How would it be Yves, if I were to come over and just nose round a bit?" "Capital!" agreed Yves cheerfully.

"Of course, asserted Meredith. "I have no official standing? How are you going to square things with that?" "That's all right, John. That's all arranged." Meredith looked at him admiringly. (To be continued)

Theatre Attractions

An excellent cast is seen in "Swamp Water" showing at the State tonight and Thursday, headed by Walter Brennan, Walter Huston, Anne Baxter, Dana Andrews, Virginia Gilmore, John Carradine, Mary Howard and Ward Bond.

The story of a boy who, against the wishes of his family and friends, goes into the swamp for a favorite hunting dog lost in the vast Okefenokee area in Georgia. It is set against the mystery and strangeness of the country in that region. Serialized in a national magazine, the Vereen Bell story was widely read and, in the hands of capable actors, including Brennan, twice an Academy award winner, Huston, well known stage and screen actor and the others, it should be one of the better screen dramas.

At the Grand Thursday through Saturday are: "Sing, Dance, Plenty Hot", a musical comedy with Ruth Terry, Johnny Downs, Barbara Allen and Billy Gilbert and "Riders of the Badlands" with Charles Starrett and Russell Hayden.

Concluding there tonight are "Leopard Men of Africa" and "City of Missing Girls".

Quakers Defeat Inspired Youngstown Chaney Quintet, 47-32

Pridon Leads Locals To Victory; Entriken Paces Reserves In Fourth Win

Quaker Teams Rally To Save Games In Last Quarter; Guappone Hoops 11 Points to Aid Salem Cause

Nearly swept off their feet by the brand of ball displayed by the Youngstown Chaney quintet, the Salem Quakers snapped out of their lethargy long enough to tally 15 points in the final quarter to hang up their third win of the young season, 47-32 on the home floor last night. The Steel City cagers, paced by Tocco and Peterson who scored 11 points each, gave the locals a merry game before folding up in the face of a spirited last period drive by the Salemites.

The battle started off tamely enough but it wasn't long until the fans and members of both squads knew that it might be a tough game. Before the tip was a minute old, Sam Pridon had dropped in a short shot to put the home team in the lead. A battle royal was begun as both teams began hooping them from all over the court. The Quakers got a little bit the best of the deal as they ended the first period ahead by a 14-9 margin. Pridon and Guappone accounted for 12 of these 14 tallies.

The Salemites pace let down in the second quarter just a little and both teams battled on even terms the whole period. Each scored nine points and the Quakers enjoyed a 23-18 lead at the intermission.

SPORT CHATTER

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
(Wide World Sports Columnist)

NEW YORK, Dec. 17. — (Wide World) — Seems to be open season for suggestions on how the sports program can be made to fit the military program. Joining the rush, how about postponing the building of that basketball hall of fame and sinking the dough from the "golden ball" games (which will be played in every state) into defense bonds? There might even be a surplus for the army and navy relief funds. The Naismith memorial wouldn't lose out, either.

Explanation?

Corporal Earl Flora, former Ohio State Journal sports writer now at Randolph Field, Tex., writes Sports Ed. Bob Hoey this explanation of the 71-7 Texas-Oregon score. Story is that just before Duke got the Rose Bowl bid, Oregon State wired Texas that the Longhorns could be invited if they would cancel the Oregon game. Seems the coast boys figured they couldn't "gamble" the Rose Bowl prestige against the chance that Oregon would knock Texas off. So the Texans went out to snow them just what sort of a gamble it would have been.

Calling Names

In Chattanooga, Tenn., they're already calling Duke vs. Oregon State the "Tobacco Bowl." How about a fresh name for an East West game played in the south? And next Sunday's pro playoff is being tabbed as the "Snow Bowl" which seems appropriate in view of the fact it was so cold in Chicago last week that the papers reported these red-hot Bears roped the ball in the last few seconds of the game.

Odd—and Some Ends

The Dodgers have called off negotiations with the Yanks over Delph Camillo. No wonder the fans are confused about the effect of the war on sports when the Army plans to ban all California events that will draw 10,000 at the same time the Navy is lining up a huge boxing show at Los Angeles for the benefit of Pearl Harbor victims. Cutt Hornmann, manager of Ray Robinson, picks Sammy Angott to take the unadorned lightweight title when he fights Lew Jenkins Friday, because of the way Sammy got up and fought back after Robinson floored him twice.

Taking It On The Fun

Benny Oosterbaan, Michigan basketball coach who ended his playing career 14 years ago demonstrated foul-shooting the other day by fouling in ten straight without even looking at the basket. They can't say Benny ain't what he Oosterbaan.

Captain Ray "Goose" McGaffie had perhaps the worst night he has ever had in his basketball career. His "eye" was off and he missed many shots, some of them his easy ones. Although he looked bad, he still pushed in three rebound shots and totaled six points for the evening. Besides this, he played his usual stellar brand of ball on the defensive.

The team as a whole looked bad in spots as they were seized with a case of "jitters." Several times they practically handed the ball to a Chaney player so inaccurate were their passes. They passed up many good shots at several stages of the game by feeding the ball in to the corner men who were forced to rush their shots. Finally late in the third stanza and early in the fourth they began to click and got the attack going which spelled defeat for a game Chaney quintet.

Sam Pridon turned in the finest game of his young high school basketball career as he scored 16 points on the offense and played a fine defensive ball game. Had he not gone out on fouls in the final period, his total might have been higher.

The Youngstowners are to be praised for the type of ball they showed against the home team. They have improved much since they were slaughtered by Warren, 69-18, two short weeks ago. Their fast break almost drove the Quakers crazy as they breezed down the floor at terrific speed to take long passes and sink easy lay-up shots. They were somewhat taller than the locals but controlled the backboards only at intervals throughout the game.

On the other hand the Quakers were much the better team on paper but had one of those unexplainable bad nights which dulled their victory hopes. They were fortunate to be playing one of the easier teams on their schedule when it came along.

Reserves Win Fourth

The Reserves came out of their hectic battle with their fourth straight win of the season over the Chaney reserves, who were slightly underrated. The subs, led by Frank "Flick" Entriken, took a 9-7 lead at the end of the first period only to see it vanish in the determined second stanza spurt by their opponents. After being behind by four points at the half, the locals started a rally of their own in which they scored 10 points to assume a lead which was never overcome. They led 24-21 at the end of the third quarter and boosted that edge to seven points to snare a 33-26 triumph.

Entriken and Culberson with 10 and nine points paced the Salemites while Frederick hooped eight to cop scoring honors for the visitors.

Meet Niles Friday

The Salem squads will journey to Niles to meet the Red Dragon cage teams Friday. Coach Brown hopes that the teams will be back up to par for their tilts in that city as the Dragons are rated strongly this year.

The varsity will be after its fourth win of the season while the Reserves hope to annex their fifth and remain undefeated.

FITZPATRICKS TOP ALTHOUSE QUINTET IN OVERTIME, 37-36

Cadets Defeat Presbys For Second Win; Two Games Are Postponed

Fitzpatrick's, formerly the Ex-high's, won their second game of the season to take the lead in the Class A race at the Memorial Building last night, defeating the Althouse Motors, 37-36, in an overtime game.

The game was close and exceedingly rough all the way with Referee Joe Kelley calling 39 fouls through the course of the game. The score was tied at 32-32 at the end of the regulation game. In the overtime, the Servicemen turned on the heat and managed to edge out a one-point win.

Les Knepp turned in a fine game for the Fitzpatrick's five, flipping in 18 points. Gordy Scullion paced the Althouse attack with 14.

In the only Class B game of the evening the Cadets downed the Presbys, 37-25. It was the second win of the year for the Cadets and second loss for the church team. Duerber Miller led the Cadets to victory, scoring 13 points while Milligan and Wagoner helped the Presbys cause with six points each.

The two games scheduled besides those two were postponed.

ent time for hiring additional police and firemen, as recommended to council a week ago by Mayor Phillips, to cope with any emergency.

"The committee spent considerable time in an endeavor to locate money which could be used, but our investigations only confirmed what the city auditor previously said—that funds on hand were only sufficient to meet payroll requirement through January," Morris explained.

The manufacturers themselves are working out plans for fire and police protection within their own plants, the councilman explained further. He said he understood, too, that the American Legion was arranging a "minute man" brigade to help out in case of an emergency.

Police Chief Stoffer was ordered to go ahead and remove the cell block to the pumping station after council approved a motion by Mem-

NAZIS BATTERED ALONG TWO FRONTS

British Report Progress Against Hitler's Desert Forces

broadcast from comment on the exploits of "our victorious German army" to a discourse of the "unbelievable difficulties" under which Nazi troops were fighting in Russia.

Soviet front-line dispatches said the Germans were retreating, with bloody losses, on both the north and south flanks of the Moscow defense arc.

On the North African front, British imperial headquarters reported that heavy British pressure was being maintained on the left flank of Hitler's battered desert armies and that new progress was registered despite fierce sandstorms during the past 24 hours.

The German high command gave this terse summary of the fighting, which clearly appeared to be turning into an axis debacle:

"A heavy defensive battle west of Tobruk continued yesterday. Strong enemy attacks near Bardia were repulsed with considerable losses to the enemy."

Premier Mussolini's high command said particularly heavy fighting raged all day yesterday in the Gazala sector, 40 miles west of Tobruk, with the British continually throwing fresh forces into the battle.

A hint that the Italians may already be pulling out of North Africa cropped up in a British admiralty communiqué, reporting that a Fascist submarine carrying an Italian general and 19 other military officers from Libya to Italy had been sunk in the central Mediterranean.

The admiralty said the general was not among the 53 survivors.
